

Notables

A WEEKLY JOURNAL OF
Society, Charity & Service

PHOTO BY LUCIEN CAPEHART PHOTOGR

The Preservation Foundation's 31st Annual Dinner Dance featured a Russian Winter Ball theme complete with dancers from The Zanadu Group and polar bear sculptures. Guests at each of the malachite clothed tables received a Stubbs and Wootton gift bag (below).

Preservation Foundation Dinner Dance takes 'best of season,' PAGE 3

PHOTOS BY LUCIEN CAPEHART PHOTOGRAPHY

The Bob Hardwick Sound performs at the Preservation Foundation 31st Annual Dinner Dance.

The cocktail hour featured a winter wonderland theme.

Em Mendez
Notables Editor

There is always one event that stands out as the most memorable of the season.

Normally, we wait until the end of April to determine which, but this season, there is already no doubt.

Nearly three weeks later, cocktail party guests are still enchanted by the Preservation Foundation's 31st Annual Dinner Dance.

Well-known designer Scott Snyder transformed the Venetian Ballroom at the Breakers into a Russian Winterland that none will soon forget.

The décor required the nearly 10,000-square-foot Ballroom to be wrapped in floor-to-ceiling red canvas and the entire floor in red carpet.

The dance floor was covered in white vinyl with blue light projections of snowflakes complete with artificial snow falling from the ceiling.

Seven-foot-tall polar bear ice sculptures bookended the white bandstand which was adorned with white

Patrick Park and Diana Ecclestone

birch trees.

Diana Ecclestone served as Chairman for the Annual Dinner Dance, which was dedicated to the late Evelyn Lauder and late Alyne Massey.

Preservation Foundation Chairman John Mashek said, "The proceeds from the ball, approximately $1.2 million gross, are allocated to benefit our advocacy initiatives, educational programs, architectural resources, cultural events, and the important work of preservation here in the town. It is a testament to Diana how successful the gala has been during this year."

Ambassador Ed and Susie Elson

Amanda Haynes-Dale and John Mashek

Gold Chiavari chairs with green pads were at each of the malachite clothed tables.

PRESERVATION FOUNDATION OF PALM BEACH

Russian Winter Ball enchants gala g

PHOTOS BY LUCIEN CAPEHART PHOTOGRAPHY

The cocktail hour featured a wi

The Bob Hardwick Sound performs at the Preservation Foundation 31st Annual Dinner Dance.

Em Mendez
Notables Editor

There is always one event that stands out as the most memorable of the season.

Normally, we wait until the end of April to determine which, but this season, there is already no doubt.

Nearly three weeks later, cocktail party guests are still enchanted by the Preservation Foundation's 31st Annual Dinner Dance.

Well-known designer Scott Snyder transformed the Venetian Ballroom at the Breakers into a Russian Winterland that none will soon forget.

The décor required the nearly 10,000-square-foot Ballroom to be wrapped in floor-to-ceiling red canvas and the entire floor in red carpet.

The dance floor was covered in white vinyl with blue light projections of snowflakes complete with artificial snow falling from the ceiling.

Seven-foot-tall polar bear ice sculptures bookended the white bandstand which was adorned with white

Patrick Park and Diana Ecclestone

birch trees.

Diana Ecclestone served as Chairman for the Annual Dinner Dance, which was dedicated to the late Evelyn Lauder and late Alyne Massey.

Preservation Foundation Chairman John Mashek said, "The proceeds from the ball, approximately $1.2 million gross, are allocated to benefit our advocacy initiatives, educational programs, architectural resources, cultural events, and the important work of preservation here in the town. It is a testament to Diana how successful the gala has been during this year."

Ambassador Ed and Susie Elson

Amanda Haynes-Dale and John Mashek

Gold Chiavari chair each of the malach